

Memories Are Made of Fists

Cat Fight in Margate

It was sort of the very late version of the Saturday night fights recently at Memories in Margate. A prominent Philadelphia lawyer strolled in about 2 a.m. with his dishy red-haired girlfriend on his arm. Although the place was packed, he was spotted by his glamorous brunette ex-girlfriend. The Ex, being the friendly sort, I guess, called him over for a brief chat.

The chat apparently wasn't as brief as his new lady friend liked. That seemed clear from what happened next. Living up to the stereotype of redheads as hotheads, Current shoved the Ex, kicking off what witnesses described as a Cat Fight. Bouncers quickly moved the antagonists outside to Amherst Avenue, where kicking, punching, scratching and biting ensued, according to one witness.

Somewhat embarrassed, the lawyer Charles Peruto Jr. left the scene. (Ever the gentleman, he returned later to claim his date.) Asked how he manages to have women fight over the pleasure of his company, Chuck just shrugged his shoulders... and grinned.